NaUTICAL.—HAVING PATENTS FROM THE United States and Great Britain for an arrangement by which the card and needle of the ordinary mariner's compass are relatively adjustable, so that by a simple manual process the variation of the magnetic needle may be applied directly to the compass, thus making the courses sailed the true courses; the winds recorded the true winds; the bearings taken the true bearings, and no allowance nor correction for variation necessary for working up the dead reckoning. Correspondence with manufacturers and desiers is solicited with the view of its introduction into general maritime use. Address SILAS BENT., 717 Garrison av., St.
